Total and permanent disability (TPD) cover provides financial support by providing a lump sum payment to help cover costs such as bills, medical care, or home alterations if the insured person becomes totally and permanently disabled and is unable to work or undertake home duties.

Key features.

- The cover can be taken out by individuals aged 16-64 (inclusive).
- Coverage ends at age 100.
- The maximum sum assured available is $5,000,000.
- The insured person's total and permanent disability can be assessed against their own occupation or any occupation depending on their occupation class.
- If someone ceases paid employment after cover commences for the purposes of managing a household then they may be eligible to be assessed under the Home duties definition.
- Premiums can be for a fixed period (level premium) or premiums that increase each year (age-rated).
- Premium payment options include fortnightly, monthly, quarterly, half-yearly, or yearly.

1. TPD definitions.

Total and permanent disability (TPD) before age 65.

- Own occupation: Due to sickness or injury, the insured person is unable to work in their occupation at the time of claim for at least three months, and it's unlikely they'll ever work in that occupation again in any capacity.
- Any occupation: Due to sickness or injury, the insured person is unable to work in any occupation they are suited to by way of education, training and experience, for at least three months, and it's unlikely they'll ever work in any suitable occupation again.
- Home duties: At the date the insured person becomes disabled they were undertaking full-time home duties as defined in the cover wording, and after three months can no longer do those home duties or leave the house without assistance, and are unlikely to ever do normal home duties again.
- Activities of daily living: The insured person is unable to perform at least two activities of daily living without adult assistance due to sickness or injury.
- Loss of sight or limbs: The insured person has suffered the total and permanent loss of:
  - sight in both eyes, or
  - use of two limbs, or
  - sight in one eye and use of one hand or foot.
- Cognitive impairment: The insured person suffers a permanent and irreversible loss of cognitive function requiring full-time care for their safety. The cognitive loss must be confirmed by clinical evidence and standardised tests.

TPD from age 65 to 70.

If the insured person was working at least 25 hours a week after turning 65 without sickness or injury limitations, claims made before their 70th birthday will be assessed using the same criteria as TPD before age 65. If there were limitations, claims are assessed using criteria for age 70 and above.

Home duties from age 65.

If the insured person was not employed due to them undertaking full-time home duties before becoming disabled, claims will be assessed under the same definition as TPD from age 70.

TPD from age 70.

The insured person is considered totally and permanently disabled after their 70th birthday if the insured person:

- Suffers the total and permanent loss of sight in both eyes, or use of two limbs, or sight in one eye and use of one hand or foot, confirmed by a specialist medical practitioner, or
- Is unable to perform at least two activities of daily living without adult assistance due to sickness or injury, or
- Suffers a permanent and irreversible loss of cognitive function requiring full-time care for their safety, confirmed by clinical evidence and standardised tests.

Partial benefit.

Fidelity Life will pay a partial benefit if the insured person suffers the total and permanent loss of one hand, one foot or the sight of one eye. The loss of sight in an eye must be confirmed by a specialist medical practitioner and meet certain criteria.
